THIS WAS VERDICT OF THE MEETING LAST NIGHT—PLANS FORMULATED TO BRING IN-DUSTRIES TO THIS CITY.

A large number of citizens responded to the call to meet at the 25-000 club rooms last night. The rooms were full and much enthusiasm manifested.

The meeting was called to order by President Lucas and Editor Norrell of the Democrat was asked to serve as secretary.

After a statement from the president that the meeting was called looking to the making of a greater Ada and that now is the time for action, Mr. Ebey was asked to present the plans that had partially been formulated. He stated that an option had been taken upon 400 acres of land lying north of the city, and that it was up to the citizens to confirm the actions of the committee and close a deal, whereby they would become owner of same, enabling them to offer sites as inducements for the establishing of factories. The plans that the committee has formulated is to form a holding company, who will take over this land, lay it off into lots, sell the lots and from the proceeds of such sale pay for the property, and the funds above the cost of lands and expense of placing it upon the market to be held as a bonus fund to be offered for the location of factories and the railroad shops of the new road that is certain to be built into the city. The plan as outlined by Mr. Ebey is the one that has been successfully used at Lawton, Tulsa, Oklahoma City and other cities of the state.

Following Mr. Ebey's outline of the plan a number of gentlemen spoke upon the matter, in which all agree that now is the opportune time for something to be done, and each speaker pledged his hearty co-operation in the enterprise.

A subscription list for stock to the holding company was opened and a goodly number subscribed.

The following committee was appointed to draw up papers of incorporation and work out the detail of the proposition as follows: Hope, Hays, Beck, Little, Rinard, Lucas, Ebey and Judge Currie. The committee is to also assist another one composed of Dr. Holley, Aldridge and Tolbert, in securing subscribers for stock, and both are to report their work to a meeting of the citizens on next Tuesday night.

The Bad Temper.

A stranger to the News passed by the front of the editorial office twice during the afternoon and each time when directly in front without varying from the chalk line or looking right or left, he would with the utmost extract from his inside coat pocket a pint whiskey flask and drink therefrom a long and apparently exhilarating swig. The News was not tempted being strictly on the water wagon.

ARMSTRONG PAYS
DEATH PENALTYMURDERER OF ISAAC T. FELL IS LEGALLY HANGED IN PER-RY, OKLA., JAIL YARD.

DOOMED MAN RETAINS NERVE

The Wife of Fell Witnesses the Grim Execution With Satisfaction.

Perry, Okla., Nov. 19.—Eight feet to eternity was the distance Henry T. Armstrong, murderer of Isaac T. Fell, dropped when the death trap was sprung at 10:30 today by Sheriff A. C. Nicewander of Noble county. He had kissed the crucifix, repeated the confession dictated by Father Willebrod of the Catholic church, stolidly shook his head when asked if he had any reason to give why the execution should not be made, and received the black mask with the last pulsating flush of blood in his face and a well of tears in his eyes. His last heart beat expired in twenty minutes the body was placed in the undertaker's basket, the hangman's noose removed and the basket borne to the undertaker's store.

There was not a quiver of a muscle when the body was suspended. The neck was broken and the form of the dead man, hands clasped to legs with black leather straps, foot bound to foot, hung stark still. The heart beat for nearly twenty minutes as the pulse grew fainter and fainter and one was almost led to suspect that the man who faced the execution with such a stolid countenance might perhaps knowingly remain still conscious that he was passing, yet too brave to move a muscle. Dr. Bruce Watson and Dr. D. D. Brengle were the physicians who pronounced the body dead.

Witnesses Admitted.

Sheriff Nicewander opened the gate of the stockade to invited visitors at 9:15. The newspaper men filed in, entered the jail and called upon Joe Kerns, the last death watch. They found Armstrong apparently in a deep sleep upon his bunk. He had been sleeping for over an hour, his pale face as peaceful as that of a child dreaming pleasant dreams. Then followed the visiting sheriffs, bailiffs, the jury that convicted the murderer, the jury that was to make affidavit to his death on the scaffold, a few Perry officials and other citizens, and Mrs. Ada Fell, the widow of the man Armstrong murdered just eleven months ago today.

Hearing from the priest the reading of the last confessional at the door of the jail, Armstrong was led into the corridor of the stockade, through a line of county sheriffs and upon the scaffold, Sheriff Nicewander leading the doomed man, supported by Father Willebrod and Thos. Phillips, a layman. The doomed man never hesitated as he mounted the steps. Sheriff Nicewander then, puffing a cigar in his mouth and with a broad-brimmed black hat set firmly on his head, read the order of execution. "Have you anything to say why the death sentence should not be imposed?" the sheriff asked.

"It Is God's Will."

Armstrong grew visibly pale, glanced askance at the priest and with a faint smile said: "It is the will of the Lord." The cross was upon his breast, hanging without the coat of a new black suit and setting a sparkle beneath the collar of his black satin shirt. The prisoner kissed the crucifix, and the priest, trembling devoutly read the last exhortation. He said:

"Behold, 'tis Jesus Christ who awaits you with outstretched arms to welcome you. I bid you farewell and may God receive your spirit. May the angelic hosts greet you in the land of eternal rest."

The noose that was placed on the doomed man's neck was sent from Frederick by Sheriff Frank Carter. It had hung 'Frank ford, a negro at Frederick, and John Hopkins, a white man, who had murdered his sweetheart at Miami. It was a three-quarter-inch rope, with an eight-roll knot. It did not fit well upon Armstrong's neck and his first clinch was made when it was being reset after having been placed. The priest stood near and the man frequently looked into the minister's eyes with the faintest perception of a smile. As the black mask was being lowered his face flushed, his eyes filled with tears, dimples as of a smile or a weep came into his cheek. At that instant the crowd of witnesses got its first profound impression that the man was coming into a full realization of his awful doom. It was an indescribable expression, eliciting the sympathy of the hardest heart. It was the parting look of hopelessness, utterly ruined, outcast, friendless human. It was uncanny, impressive and withal a curious mixture that betrayed all the collected emotions of a human soul.

Justice Is Done.

"Justice has at last been done," said Mrs. Fell, "and I am happy. Did I hate to see the man's neck broken? Why not ask if I have lost the love that I bear my little children? Had the sheriff not officiated, I would have sprung the trap myself had I been permitted."

Among the throng of country folks who came to Perry today was Chief Pipestem of the Otoe Indian tribe, whose Indian name is Shu-mon-ea-the. He is a stalwart young fellow of 35 and the hereditary ruler of 350 people. "I came here," he said, "in response to the wishes of my people, who have become incensed because Armstrong had said his spirit would walk the streets of Perry after the hanging. I want to tell him that the Otoe Indians do not believe him and are not afraid of him. They do not like him and he does not like them, but they are not made superstitious by his threats."

One Friend on Earth.

One solitary friend on earth gave the doomed man cheer and comfort and pointed him to the domains of a better land. Not a living soul bade him goodbye save the priest, Albert Mitchell, the young man who assisted in the crime, and the Pawnee woman that he made his wife years ago, are inmates of the state insane asylum. A half brother lives in the Pawnee country, but he did not attend the execution.

With the exception of harsh remarks by a few men whose inner natures evidently lacked the refinement that should characterize the man who knows a neighbor, Perry today was a

Bro. Stubblefield Returns.

Rev. C. Stubblefield returned from Oklahoma City where he had been engaged several days in the transaction of the business of the State Baptist board of which he is a leading member. It was the business of this board to appropriate money for the support of the weaker churches throughout the state and to supply those districts of the state wherein there was limited religious cultivation with missionaries. While in session, Brother Stubblefield's board appropriated nearly fifty thousand toward the support of the Baptist cause in Oklahoma.

REIGN OF TERROR IN NICARAGUA
Uncle Sam Orders Two Cruisers to Protect American Citizens.

Washington, Nov. 18.—The American Consul at Managua reports that two Americans captured with the revolutionists were executed by shooting near Greytown, despite the consul's protests to President Zelaya. The navy department immediately ordered two cruisers to proceed there.

Private cablegrams from Nicaragua says a reign of terror exists there. The government troops are arresting everybody suspected of revolutionary sympathy and executing them without trial. Over five hundred have been executed and the bloody work continues. Zelaya's soldiers are ransacking residences, burning many and women are subjected to outrages. Refugees in Panama and Costa Rica declare the conditions are terrible in the little Central America state.

TO ENFORCE PROHIBITION LAW

HOLT HAS BROUGHT TO BEAR
THE MOST STRINGENT CLAUSE OF THE BILLUPS BILL.

Brings Action Against Maud Property
for $291,000 for Renting Buildings as Joins.

In his endeavor to enforce the prohibition law County Attorney C. P.
Holt has brought to bear the most stringent clause of the Billups Bill—confiscation of the property used in violating the law. Yesterday he filed a suit, in the district court against Alvin Ogee of Maud, for two hundred and ninety-one days continuous violation of the law and asked judgment for $1000 per day or a total of $291-000; that the judgment be a lien upon the building, and real estate, wherein the law was violated. The full particulars appear in the following copy of the petition filed by Mr. Holt, caption omitted:

"That the defendant, Alvin Ogee, was on the first day of Feb., 1909, and each and every day thereafter and is at this time the owner of lot 23 in block 2 in the town of Maud, Pontawatomie county, Oklahoma, together with the buildings thereon.

"That on the first day of Feb., 1909, and at each and every day thereafter and at this time, the said defendant, Alvin Ogee, occupied and used the said building for the purpose of violating the prohibition laws of the state of Oklahoma, to-wit: Did keep, have in his possession and sell, barter, give away and otherwise furnish, distributed and divided intoxicating liquors to-wit: Beer, whiskey, ale and substitutes therefor and imitations thereof.

"Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment against the said defendant for the sum of one thousand dollars for each and every violation as herein set forth to-wit: From the first day of Feb., 1909, to the 18th day of Nov., 1909, a total of $291,000; that said judgment be a lien upon the property described in this petition and that said property be sold, as by law provided, and proceeds of the sale be applied upon said judgment, and that the balance of the judgment be declared a lien upon the property of the defendant."—Shawnee Herald.

SOME ODD USES FOR PAPER

SOME OF THE UNUSUAL AND IN-TERESTING USES FOR PAPER IN JAPAN.

Houses, Umbrellas, Wearing Apparel, Raincoats, Tobacco Pouches and Pipe Cases Are Some of the Uses.

One scarcely realizes the many various uses to which paper may be put until he has considered the ingeniety of the people of Japan. The Japanese use paper for all kinds of articles in domestic use—for clothing and for house building.

Some of the unusual and interesting uses for paper in Japan are as follows:

Houses are made of paper. The frame is of wood, but the walls are paper, which is so treated that it will keep out the wind. Paper walls make it possible to dispense with glass for windows, as they let in plenty of light, resist the rain, and in a measure keep out the cold.

Oiled paper is made in Japan into umbrellas and wearing apparel, which are astonishingly cheap and durable.
The jinrikisha men wear paper raincoats, which last a year or more with constant use. Oiled tissue paper is used in Japan as wrapping paper.
The paper is tanned with the fermented juice of green persimmons.
Tea sacks strong and durable, are made of this paper.

Tobacco pouches and piped cases are made from "leather paper," which is strong and at the same time soft and pliable. Paper pots are used in Japanese households as are similar articles made of tin in the American home.

In the art of making napkins, para-sols and lanterns from paper it is a recognized fact that Japan has taught the whole world, both occidental and oriental, many lessons.

The employment of paper in these ingenious ways is one of the many devices that the Japanese have evolved which enable so many millions of them to live on the productions of a cultivated area about one-third the size of the state of Illinois.

There are many plants used by the Japanese to make paper from, according to writers in that country.
Three of these are wild forms of small trees. One—the Mitsumata plant—furnishes America and Europe with large quantities of paper every year for legal documents and diplomas. This is a shrub with a characteristic vase-like form and bearing pretty, delicate flowers.

All along the mountain streams in the interior of Japan are scattered diminutive paper factories. Paper-making consists in the uniting of any porous material so that it will form a continuous sheet. The methods employed by the Japanese peasants to make their fine paper are the simplest.

Oklahoma Mineral to Be Exhibited.

Norman, Okla., Nov. 16.—Charles N. Gould, director of the Oklahoma geological survey, is preparing an exhibition of mineral specimens to be shipped immediately to Washington for the sessions of the southern commercial congress December 6 and 7.
Mr. Gould has in this exhibit given special attention to petroleum and allied products, because no more remarkable growth in oil production has taken place in any other portion of the country than in Oklahoma. In 1891 the state produced 30 barrels.
In 1908 it produced 45,798,765 barrels, the greatest quantity of oil produced in that year by any single state of the union.

Mr. J. K. Scroggins, prominent farm-during the day transacting business and meeting numerous friends. Public will remember that Mr. Scroggins was one of the candidates for office at this beginning of statehood, who, while not elected, received a substantial vote which attested his general favorable reputation among his fellow county citizens. When met by a News reporter and asked concerning conditions in his neighborhood and the general welfare of his neighbors, Mr. Scroggins stated, "It affords me pleasure to speak a word, especially regarding our school district. The Cedar Grove school district, of which Mr. O. F. Sullivan, J.

N. Prince and myself are trustees, is constructing a stone building out of native white sand stone, 33x63 feet in size, with a seating capacity entirely ample for our community. This property will be situated on a ten acre tract of land, four of which will be used for campus and six for cemetery purposes. It is expected that the people of our school district will beautify these grounds by the planting of trees and shrubbery. Pro. H.
O. Sullivan, from Hart, is at present engaged in teaching a six months term for our district. This is his third term and general satisfaction with his teaching appears to prevail."

When invited, Mr. Scroggins spoke guardedly relative to county politics and the on-coming campaign. It is his estimation that while the two-term principle, all other things equal, might be regarded favorably by the voters, that since the present county officers at the conclusion of their present office, would not have been in office quite two full terms, it was probable that since they were not required to be at the expense of but one campaign, that their terms of office would really equal two terms.
Mr. Scroggins may become a candidate for county treasurer.

AFTER MR. WIMBISH

THE COMMITTEE OF STONEWALL
LADIES REPLY TO HIS AR-TICLE RECENTLY PUBLISHED IN NEWS.

CONDITIONS AS STATED EXIST

The Iniquity Sought to Be Crushed by the Petition Movement Still Prevails Unabated in Stonewall.

In a recent issue of the Ada News the attention of the public has been called to an interview with the Hon.
Robt. Wimbish, county attorney, in which, to our astonishment, his honor presumes to vent his spleen upon the better element of the Stonewall community for their "impudence," as it were, in calling the attention of his office to the brazenly open violation of the prohibition law in the town of Stonewall.

Mr. Wimbish states in plain language that the bottom of the petition movement was a desire on the part of its principal instigators to discredit him, as an official, in the eyes of the public. Far from that, Mr.
Wimbish's construction in this particular and the real intention of the petition movement diverge to an extent unmeasurable.

It is well realized that Mr. Wim-bish has been a diligent, fearless and vigilant officer; that crimes of the gravest character—murders attended with the most shocking circumstances have prevailed in the county during the regime of Mr.
Wimbish; that in ferreting them out and in the prosecution of the guilty ones he has been unrelenting, has done himself well and his efforts and accomplishments in this connection must of necessity make the name of Robert Wimbish stand out in bold relief in the history of Pontotoc county as one of its most efficient public officers.

Realizing Mr. Wimbish's worth as an officer as above expressed and knowing that his time has been well taken up in the prosecution of his official duties, the petitioners, to whose good intentions Mr. Wimbish has so strenuously excepted, deemed it prudent, not an act of affront, to render him assistance by calling his attention to the fact that the law was being openly offended in the town of Stonewall.

Now, if Mr. Wimbish feels slighted by reason of the fact that circumstances prevented a conference between his honor and the committee of ladies appointed to present him with the petition, we again remind him that the iniquity sought to be crushed by the petition movement still prevails unabated in Stonewall, just twelve miles from the county seat. That his public utterance in the Ada News has added energy to the traffic in Stonewall, and we still look to him hopefully for succor, and we would emphatically remind him that we are believers of the axioms:
"Silence is consent," and "Actions speak louder than words."

To the Young Fellows

While we have clothes for men from 18 years old to 80 years "young" our talk in this space is especially to the Young Chaps about the "Youthful Spirit" in dress, as it is interpreted by

of Baltimore.

They are built specially for boys in the late teens and early twenties. No young fellow wants to wear large sizes of boys clothes or small sizes of men's. They are made for the youthful figure—made to assist nature—to give that all-desired athletic built; yet so splendidly it is done that there's no suspicion of padding or freak distortion. The garments pictured here will show you. The "Stadium" is one of the most popular young men's suits ever designed.

EXTEND THE GOOD WORK.

Elsewhere will be found a report of the good work inaugurated by Miss Case in connection with her efforts as head of the piano department in the normal.

The News suggests it would be another step in the right direction if the heads of the different departments would organize similar, special classes. What's the matter with an art class or one for the study of psychology or history, to say nothing of a botany, or astronomy class. (You know the comet will soon be visible). Let's have an expression from those interested in these culture phases of our program as a city. The News columns are open to such discussions.

Philatheas and Baracas.

It was a pleasant occasion Thursday evening when the Baracas of the First Baptist Sunday school were entertained by the Philatheas. The entertainment was the result of a few weeks contest for new members between the two classes, as it was the understanding that the winning side should be entertained by the losers.

The social was given at the home of the pastor Rev. C. Stubblefield. Those attending were the class officers and members and Miss Case, teacher of Philatheas and Prof. Little the Baracas' teacher.

Various games were enjoyed and refreshments served.

These classes of young ladies and young men are to be congratulated on the good work they have been doing and they are planning greater things for the future.

CO-OPERATION IN CHARITY WORK.

The Necessity of System in the Dispensing of Funds.

In another column of today's News will be found a call from the Pastors' Association of the city for representatives of the various benevolent societies of the city to be sent to their meeting Monday morning, at which time steps will be taken looking toward caring for the poor of the city in a systematic way.

It is the purpose of this meeting to organize a Board of Public Charities, who shall have charge of distributing such funds and articles that are placed in their hands. In every city there is more or less charity work to be done, and it should be done with some system.

We understand that it is the purpose of this meeting to create a board, composed of one member from the city council and one member from each of the churches of the city, whose duties shall be to investigate whether or not the applicant is a worthy person, and if so to provide for them.

In this way the business men will be relieved of contributing directly to those making application for help, but will refer the party to the committee who will administer to their needs. It will be much easier for them to make a small contribution each month during the winter to this cause than trying to help every one that comes along, and the News is sure that this move will meet the hearty approval of the citizens of Ada.

AN IMPORTANT BANK DECISION.

Shares in National Banks Are Taxable in Arkansas.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 18.—The decision of the Supreme Court Tuesday in the case of the First National bank of Batesville is of importance in that it establishes the principle that National Banks are as taxable under the statutes of Arkansas as State banks. The appellant in this case sought to evade taxation on the theory that the amount of its capital stock was invested in Government bonds. The court holds that while as a general principle government bonds are not taxable still the shares of National banks, as such, are taxable.

To Plan for Charity Work.

All benevolent orders of the city and other organizations represented in the city of Ada are requested to send a representative to the Pastors' Association meeting at M. E. church next Monday morning at 10 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a Board of Public Charities for the city of Ada. This is for the distribution of charities rather than collection for charity. This is done by order of the president of the Pastors' Association and the Superintendent of the Normal.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

Very little cotton has been placed upon the market here this week, and reports from various sections of the country is to the effect that very little remains in the hands of the farmers. The price has continued firm and is bringing today from $13 to $13.75 per hundred.

The recent rains have been of material benefit to the wheat crop of the county and we are informed that it is coming up nicely and looks well. The turnip crop has also been greatly benefited.

MUSICAL PROGRESS.

A Step in the Right Direction—Cultivation of Higher Musical Taste.

Miss Gertrude Case, head of the piano department in the State Normal in this city, threw open the doors of her studio Wednesday afternoon to the ladies of Ada, who are interested in the cultivation of a higher musical taste among the people of this part of our state.

In welcoming the ladies, Miss Case explained the object of this meeting was to organize a class for the study of musical history in connection with the normal work of the piano department. This class is to be formed as nearly as possible of the mothers who have children studying music though all others who are interested in promoting good music will be gladly welcomed.

Several visiting ladies responded with helpful suggestions along these lines.

Mrs. Howerton stressed the need of music culture as a refining influence in the home and cited the mother's lullaby to the infant as a basic prelude to the comprehensive study of the masters in later years.

Mrs. Hodges spoke of its broadening influence upon a community as a whole and urged those present to lend their aid to Miss Case in her laudable undertaking.

Mrs. Barton followed with a clear cut resume of the necessity of co-operation effort on the part of the patrons of the normal and closed by asking several pertinent questions relative to the matter.

A charming vocal solo by Miss Anderson, a fantasia from Mozart, by Miss Case and a piano selection by Miss Emma Thompson, a bright young student in the music department, furnished a text of what future meetings promise.

A program for the meeting next month will be formulated at an early date.

Transferred Devotion

"Here she comes! Here she comes! Here's teacher!"

With a shuffling and scraping of feet, which reminded the frivolous cadet of joyous hops up at the summer camp on the lake, 15 small children swooped upon her before she had alighted from the car. She smiled at them with a distinct effort. For she wondered what the handsome young man opposite whom she had been sitting in the car thought of the spectacle. So the frivolous cadet shuddered, while she smiled professionally.

"Good morning, children," she cooed. "Are you glad to be back at school?" she asked, patronizingly, patting a small red head, while she wondered whether she could get Harold on the office 'phone that morning.

"Yes, Miss M'roe," shouted the 15. The frivolous cadet felt a tug at her arm.

"This one is mine," shouted Aileen, the golden-haired.

"Tain't, neither. It's mine, 'cause it's mine! Ain't it, Miss M'roe?" Hisped freckled Frankie, clutching the arm of the cadet as if it were a life-preserver.

Miss Monroe smiled tolerantly. That was just the way Ben Joston grabbed a girl when he danced with her, she was thinking.

"Take the other arm," commanded Aileen, frowning upon the persistent Frankie.

"Gertie's got it, an' she won't let go," hisped Frankie. "Let me take teacher's arm till th' next red house."

"Won't neither," sniffed Aileen.

Then Frankie, being a genius, shouted in inspiration, "Miss M'roe, le'me carry that nice green book."

"Me, too! Me, too!" came in chorus.

Frankie's suggestion being well received, the green book was handed over to him.

Thus were the favors of teacher apportioned. Aleck grinned as he received teacher's 'brella; Mattie blushed like a rose to get the right glove and then nearly died with rage when Oscar, who she thought had disgraced her for life by having once tried to kiss her, received the left glove. To still the wild clamor for more things to carry, the frivolous cadet took her huge hat off her puffs and three of the elect walked gingerly behind, bearing the treasure proudly aloft. Those who were still unfavored went on ahead and walked backward in a phalanx, basking in the smiles of dear teacher. It was all so funny to the frivolous cadet that she smiled more and more broadly as the triumphal procession moved on.

With thinking about the message she wanted to convey to Harold and getting the class ready to pass on to the advanced primary grade, the frivolous cadet had her hands full that morning. Suddenly there rose a disconsolate wail.

"I don't want to go—to the next room!" It was Aileen.

"Me neither," howled Gertie. "Me neither," lamented Frankie, beating his heels together in an effort to keep back unmanly tears.

Then a streak of pink flashed into the lap of the frivolous cadet. Before she realized what had happened she was smoothing a tangle of reddish hair, the little owner of which was sobbing out her heart at the threat of having to move up one room higher. While she was smiling to think how Harold would laugh when she told him about it, a thump on her arm aroused her to the fact that a little nose was sniffing against her white sleeve.

"I won't go," sputtered Mattie. "I just won't. I'll tell my papa, and they can't make me go up to the next room."

Such abject devotion touched the heart of the frivolous cadet. Not that devotion was new to her; she had received it all summer at the lake. This, however, was different from that to which she was accustomed.

Finally, when the principal came to march the pupils up to the advanced primary room the procession formed reluctantly and in tears, and then passed out dejectedly into the big hall.

At noon the frivolous cadet was eating her lunch and looking for a chance to slip into the office and call up Harold to tell him all about the funny little children's devotion and some other things. Glancing absently out of the window, she dropped her ham sandwich with a start.

"Well, I'll eat my hat!" she exclaimed.

Miss Kelliter was 55 and taught for the love of teaching. She had the advanced primary room. To the frivolous cadet she seemed the most formidable of living creatures. Therefore the sight which met the eyes of that young woman astonished her very much.

Preceding Miss Kelliter, following her, encompassing her four deep on either side, were the devoted 15 who had gone sniffing that very morning out of the room of the frivolous cadet. They were one and all fairly wallowing in the smiles of the advanced primary teacher. They had simply transferred their love to her at one fell swoop.

"Well, I'll eat my hat!" declared the frivolous cadet.
